Viva Aerobus increases payment acceptance over 40% by partnering with Worldpay

Why did Viva Aerobus choose Worldpay?

To leverage a global solution: Worldpay's worldwide acquiring capabilities, cross-border solutions, competitive prices, commitment to the Latin American market, proven experience with Mexican airlines, team of specialists, and regional support, were key factors that lead Viva to Worldpay.

To help drive sales: Viva needed a partner who understood the nuances of each market in order to maximize sales. Through Worldpay's network of cross-border solutions, Viva was able to optimize international transactions and reach more consumers worldwide. Since switching to Worldpay, Viva saw an increase in payment acceptance of over 40% percent.

To gain a competitive edge: With more than 25 years' experience in airline payments and an understanding of consumer purchasing behavior and payment processing flows in the international marketplaces, Worldpay gave Viva the edge it needed. In the first quarter 2018, the airline transported over 2.1 million passengers, an increase of 30% over the first quarter of 2017.

To obtain bett er results: The most obvious advantage Viva felt during the buying process was the number of satisfied customers in different regions of the world and the knowledge demonstrated by Worldpay's business development team.

What was Viva Aerobus looking for?

As one of the fastest growing airlines in the world, Viva Aerobus needed a payments partner that could support the company's aggressive expansion plans by increasing the sales volume for international clients and routes, and improving the acceptance rate of international transactions.
